FAB Club engages in activities with other burn clubs and charities. Information required for participation in an activity will be made available to all volunteers attending the event. Copies of personal information forms for an individual event will be held by the event organiser. FAB Club expects the information shared to be treated confidentially and only discussed as required amongst volunteers attending the event. However, FAB Club cannot be held responsible for any individuals' actions against this. The only exception to this is if a safeguarding issue arises; in these circumstances information will be disclosed to relevant external agencies (ie. Police, social services – the list is not exhaustive).

Volunteer contact details will be held on the FAB Club database and will only be accessible to Executive Committee members. Information will be released only if required, i.e.. to another FAB Club volunteer, but not to anyone else without that person's permission. Any contact information received must be treated as confidential and must not be passed onto anyone else.

It is accepted that the work of FAB must be publicised to raise its profile and fundraise, however, some information is of a confidential nature and should be treated as such. If any volunteer is in any doubt what information should be disclosed, they should seek the advice of an Executive Committee Member, this is to protect the personal information relating to volunteers, members and the integrity of the charity.
